LOCO FOCISM

Was illustrated in all its deformity at the Tory Caucus in Thursday evening, to the unmitigated disgust of every individual happening to be present, whose sensibilities have not become entirely blunted by a contact too long and close with the men who have ruled and the measures which have ruined, for the past eight years. It is with extreme reluctance that we are induced to speak of this meeting or of the individual who was the chief actor in its proceedings, but a sense of duty takes precedence of inclination, and the unpleasant labor must be performed.

After the ostensible purposes for which the meeting had been called, were despatched, Albert G. J. J. occupied early all the remainder of the evening in an harangue to the assembly, after the most approved style of the loco focus of the Fanny Wright and Owen school. It was a violent and inflammatory appeal to the worst of human passions and the vilest of human prejudices—made up entirely of assertions not only without proof, but which are not susceptible of proof of statements and representations which are not only false and known to be so by him who uttered them, but fabrications of such atrocious baseness, that no man, having the slightest respect for himself, or any regard for the moral sense of his auditors, would have been guilty of giving them publicity.

We were to undertake the exposition of all the fallacies and malignant standards which this creature contrived to concentrate in an hour's speech, but our task would be useless, thankless, and almost endless. Our purpose is, merely to allude to a few of the more infamously prominent.

The attempt of the mad man to shoot President Jackson a few years since in the City of Washington, was brought up by this vile Jacobin and charged upon the Whig party not in so many words for we believe that if he had dared to make the unqualified accusation, the members of his own faction who surrounded him would have hissed him into silence. But he nevertheless did speak of it as a federal conspiracy to assassinate the Chief Magistrate. He did speak of it as indicating the murderous spirit of the Whig party. He did say that the Whig press at that time, which he, in loco focus styled the Federal press, called aloud for a Brutus to throw the dagger to the breast of the modern Caesar, and that this man came forth in answer to the call. All this he said at the same time that he knew full well that the man who attempted the life of Jackson was proved, to the entire satisfaction of the whole community, to be, and to have been for a long time, a raving maniac, who in his frenzy believed that General Jackson had usurped the station to which he had an hereditary right.

Then came the recent unfortunate duel at Washington and in his rehearsal of this affair and the circumstances connected with it, the speaker left far behind, the every day meanness and unworthy egotism of Mr. A. He alluded to a lower depth than the lowest of which he dared to descend and did the story press. His rehearsal of the duel was from the beginning to the end a broken series of false and unwarranted assertions and unwarranted generalizations, unadorned by the slightest bit of fact or of truth. He said that Mr. C. was challenged to fight and that Mr. C. was obliged to fight. He said that Mr. C. was killed and that Mr. A. was the victor. He said that Mr. C. was a coward and that Mr. A. was a hero. He said that Mr. C. was a traitor and that Mr. A. was a patriot. He said that Mr. C. was a villain and that Mr. A. was a gentleman. He said that Mr. C. was a scoundrel and that Mr. A. was a nobleman. He said that Mr. C. was a knave and that Mr. A. was a squire. He said that Mr. C. was a rascal and that Mr. A. was a dandy. He said that Mr. C. was a scoundrel and that Mr. A. was a nobleman. He said that Mr. C. was a knave and that Mr. A. was a squire. He said that Mr. C. was a rascal and that Mr. A. was a dandy.

other reason than that he was a noble, during the Whig party, who had the indecent audacity to oppose the Whig party and support the administration. He is a man who fell in defense of the freedom of debate, at the same time that he knew that the friends of Mr. Graves repeatedly urged the termination of the contest, on the very ground that Mr. Cilley was not answerable for words spoken in debate, and Mr. Cilley obstinately refused to end the duel on that ground. He said that the Whigs through their presses were the apologists of Mr. Graves and his friends, and that they supported and defended them in their course, at the same time that he knew, that not a single Whig paper in the country had rendered itself obnoxious to the foul charge.

Then came the loco focus songster, concerning which we had occasion to speak yesterday, the infamous document which first appeared in the Tory Evening Post, in New York city, signed many Whigs and attributed to the Whig party. Upon this precious document the scurrilous mountebank dismounted and long he called it a circular of the Whig Committee of New York. He said that it had been sent to every wealthy Whig having laboring men in his employment throughout the country, and that, as the attempt to assassinate Jackson and the ruthless and cold blooded murder of Cilley, showed the bloody determination of the Whig party to rid themselves of such obstacles by the knife and the bullet, so this circular indicated their resolution to coerce the laboring classes into compliance with their wishes, by starvation. All this he said, at the same time that he knew that the paper of which he spoke had been repudiated and utterly disavowed by the Whig press and the Whig party, and at the same time that he had every reason to believe that it was originated by his own respectable faction in the city of New York.

But enough of this. We have already, we fear, extended our notice farther than the subject will justify, but we felt constrained to say something, and less we could not say. Heaven forbid that we should ever seek to soften phraseology when alluding to the infamous demagogue whom we have been obliged upon to chastise. To the honor of those who were present at his harangue, he proceeded without the interruption of a moment's applause and not a solitary murmur of approbation followed its close.

If the Executive of our State had done no other act to reflect honor upon his administration the removal of Albert G. J. J. from the office of County Attorney is alone sufficient to entitle him to the everlasting gratitude of the People of the County of Penobscot.

The nominee of the loco focus to the Mayor's office is scarcely sufficient significance to warrant us in alluding to it. We cannot believe that it would have been made, had the loco focus been animated by the slightest hope of success. But little men are as much gratified by the shadow, as by the substance, of office, and, to have been Governor by chance is as grateful to such as to have been so by the free choice of the People. It is as flattering to small minds to be nominated by a party as to be elected by the People. When the corruption of such men can be effected without cost, it is policy to conciliate.

The Age singles out the New York Courier and Enquirer, the Boston Atlas, the Portland Gazette, the Portland Courier, Kennebec Journal, and Bangor Whig, as among the papers that palliate the conduct of Mr. Cilley's murderers. Daily Journal.

The number of the Age which contains the article referred to by the Journal, has not been received at our office. We are indebted to the Journal for an intimation of its contents.

The editor of the Age in charging us, with palliating the conduct of Mr. Cilley's murderers, must have misunderstood our language as much as he misunderstood his own, when he charged the murder upon the Bank party, and afterwards said he did not mean it. We have not palliated the conduct of any of the parties, we merely said and proved, that Mr. Cilley and his friends were at least as guilty as Mr. Graves, and his friends. And we challenge the Age to state a single fact to disprove this position.

We take another position too, in this matter to which we invite the attention of the Age. A man, who for private or party purposes, will originate or propagate an unfounded charge against others, of forming and carrying into effect a conspiracy to murder, is unprincipled enough to commit murder himself, whenever his passions or his interest shall be powerful enough to overcome his fear of the gallows. We recommend to the editor to look again at the charges made in his paper against the Bank party, and Mr. Cilley. Reflection may teach him, but apology for his own course, rather than at tacks upon Albert G. J. J. for their course on this subject, will be becoming in him.

The Tory press in proof of the existence of a conspiracy to kill Mr. Cilley, as the opponent of the Whigs, are constant in the assertion that Mr. Duncan was more severe in his remarks upon Col. Webb, than was Mr. Cilley, and unless there was such a conspiracy, Mr. Duncan, and not Mr. Cilley, would have been called upon for an explanation. Unfortunately for them, this assertion, like most of their statements respecting this affair, turns out to be false. Mr. Duncan did not attack Col. Webb at all, as appears by the published extracts from the Bangor Morning News, and Col. Webb, therefore, has no occasion to call upon him for an explanation.

MAINE LEGISLATURE IN SENATE

Thursday, March 8
On motion of Mr. Carfill, ordered, that the Secretary of the Senate be requested to procure the printing of a suitable number of the resolves relating to the death of the late Jonathan Cilley for distribution, agreeably to the last of said resolves.

The Wheat Bounty Bill was called up by Mr. Reagan, and on motion of Mr. Boutelle, it was so amended that only three cents should be paid on a bushel on all over two hundred bushels. The bill as thus amended passed to be engrossed.

The committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the petition of Warren Clark and Mary Clark for a divorce, reported that the Legislature had no jurisdiction over such cases, it requiring an exercise of judicial power, and that therefore the petitioners have leave to withdraw.

On motion of Mr. Greene, the Secretary of State was authorized to publish this report and the resolve in all the papers that print the laws of the State.

The resolve authorizing the Quarter Master to supply the rifle companies with rifles from the State Arsenal, was indefinitely postponed by yeas and nays—yeas 14, nays 12.

The bill to incorporate the Bangor Methodist Society came up, Mr. Woodbury moved its indefinite postponement. Messrs Soule and Emery, and others, made some remarks on the question, and the bill was recommitted.

Passed to be engrossed. Bill to incorporate the Wetmore Island Bridge to set off part of the town of Brighton and Athens to authorize manufacturing corporations to redeem land sold at auction to authorize the proprietors of the old meeting house in New Castle to sell the same to accept the charter of the Waldo Bank.

Additional concerning the jurisdiction and proceedings of the Courts of Probate further regulating judicial process and proceedings resolve in favor of Exeter High School.

Passed to be engrossed. Bill to incorporate the Salmon Stream Lumber Company authorizing A B Perry to call the first meeting of the Franklin Bridge corporation to suspend the small bill law. Adj.

HOUSE

Resolutions on the currency, laid upon the table until half past 10 o'clock.

Bill additional to enable Georgia Lumber Company to keep an office in this State, was referred to the committee on Banks and Banking.

Bill passed to be enacted. Authorizing A B Perry to call the first meeting of the Franklin Bridge Corporation suspending for a limited time certain portions of the Act prohibiting the emission and circulation of small bills, and prohibiting banks to make dividends during the suspension of specie payments to incorporate Salmon Stream Lumber Co.

The resolutions on the currency were taken up, and Mr. Vose took the floor in support of the resolutions.

Mr. Parris followed on the other side.

Mr. Tenney obtained the floor, but the subject under consideration was laid on the table for a few moments to give way for some other business.

Mr. Tenney moved to amend the request, by inserting in the bill that after the adjournment of the House to-morrow.

Mr. Parris said he was not authorized to accept the modification, he acted as a committee for those who wished the use of the Hall, and the meeting had been called at 10 o'clock.

On motion of Mr. Hamlin the request and amendment were laid on the table. Mr. Hamlin said he should have no objection to the amendment, except that his political friends should withdraw in the forenoon and organize their meeting in another place, he feared there would not be a quorum fit for the transaction of business.

On motion of Mr. Prescott, the Resolve making appropriation for the completion of the exterior of the Insane Hospital, was taken up and passed to be engrossed.

The Resolutions on the currency were again taken up, and on motion of Mr. Tenney, the House adj.

At the loco loco Caucus on Thursday evening, William D. Williamson, Esq. was nominated as a candidate for the mayoralty, and at the Conservative Caucus last evening, Otis Small, Esq. was nominated for the same office.

The loco focus probably calculate that they can get public attention so fixed on the late duel at Washington that the people will forget to look at the documents just ordered to be printed, which reveal the factitious suppression of a "CONSPIRACY" to barter away our North eastern Territory in secret session. Ibid.

Government Losses. The Secretary of the Treasury has reported to Congress that the United States funds deposited in the Banks, that will probably be lost, amounts to about one million dollars; and that the amount of loss to Government on depreciated bank notes will be about five and a half millions more. The amount of balances against the collecting officers, which has not been secured and will probably be lost, is from nine to twelve million dollars.

The Penobscot Democrat gives currency to the forged circular lately got up by the loco focus of the city of New York, calling on employers of laborers to compel such laborers to vote the whig ticket. This circular has been pronounced a base forgery and has ceased to deceive any one in this city, but the Bangor Democrat takes it up as if it had never been exposed, and displays it with staring capitals and abundant comments, all calling loudly for indignation against the whigs. Such are the villainous means by which the spoilsmen seek to retain power and place which they have dishonored and abused. [Ken Journal]

[From the Mountville Journal]
FASHION OF THE TIMES. "When I came to this country," said an emigrant, "I brought several hundred dollars in gold, they then called me Mr. Smith, but when it was all gone, I was only called plain Uncle Sam."

Answered or Many. An old woman the other day bit off the end of his finger, supposing it to be a cigar. He did not regret the mistake until he was taken to light what he had left and smoke it.

A poor fellow, a few miles out of town, went into his house for the purpose of taking the lid of a fat hen. He was so frightened by the noise that he took it for a cat, and he was so frightened that he took it for a cat, and he was so frightened that he took it for a cat.

STATE OF MAINE
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

February 5th, 1838
The Joint Select Committee to whom was referred an Order of January 30th, directing them to inquire into the expediency of amending the statutes for the support and regulation of Mills, have had that subject under consideration, and respectfully

REPORT

That the first Statute in Massachusetts, altering the common law as to flowing, was passed in 1713, wherein the preamble recites "that it hath been found by experience that when some persons in this Province have been at great cost and expenses for building of Mills, to serve the public good and benefit of the town or considerable neighborhood in or near to which they have been erected, that in raising a suitable head of water for that service, it hath sometimes so happened that some small quantity of lands or meadows have been thereby flowed and damaged not belonging to the owners of such Mills, whereby several controversies have arisen."

The evil then was that some persons owning small lots of meadow land stood in the way of erecting Mills, which in the then weakness of the country, was a great effort, and a commendable public enterprise. The evil is now, that men in the lumbering business flow and render unproductive thousands of acres of good land, not their own.

Thus we see how a principle in violation of natural rights began in Massachusetts, which has descended to us in Maine like an hereditary disease. The same principle has extended to Rhode Island, and been adopted there to increase water power for factory purposes. In all the other Northern and Middle States, extending so far south as to include Maryland, Ohio, and Indiana, and also in South Carolina and Georgia, flowing remains at common law. In the other Southern States, flowing is permitted by statutes, but proceedings to authorize it precede the right to flow. After hearing all parties interested in proper cases there, the Courts permit flowing, setting forth in their decree the terms and limitations.

The Constitution of Maine secures the right of acquiring and possessing property, excepting that private property may be taken for public use, with just compensation. Here is a condition, without which private property cannot be taken. Hence in all practicable cases, orders of notice ought to be sent out, that all parties interested may come forward and show cause why their property ought not to be taken, or to be heard on setting the just compensation. However it may have been formerly, any further increase of mills at this day stands about in the same relation to public use, as to wharves, stores and hotels.

We are of opinion that the provisions in the statutes, authorizing one man, without a preliminary inquiry, to flow the land of another, is oppressive if not unconstitutional. Allowing the mill owner to be permitted to take into possession the land of another, for his mill pond throws the injured party into the false position of appearing to be a party disturbing the rights of others. This is one cause for the general failure of justice under the statute, on which have been so many prosecutions, although many suffer who never prosecute. A temporary relief is afforded proper to be flowed would be generally far less expensive than the present statute system of permitting the lands to be flowed first, leaving to the owners only a remedy by petition. After a tedious controversy to settle the damages, it commonly happens that both parties are dissatisfied. This has a tendency to bring disrespect upon our system of administering justice.

Time has wrought such changes that now to promote agriculture is more a public benefit than to encourage the increase of Mills. As in so many States, embracing much more than half the Union, no statutes as to flowing have been adopted, it would seem safe to return to the common law here, relying on time to point out proper remedies for any evils that may arise. Such has been the oppressive practice, under the flowing provisions, and such difficulties have been experienced in the attempt to obtain justice under them, that in the cases that now exist it is far to presume that the injured land owners would submit to any reasonable terms that the mill owners may offer.

Generally, the Mill owners being active and wealthy, or commanding resources by their enterprise and credit, have disregarded and triumphed over the more humble cultivators of the soil. In some instances, poor men owning poor mills have done great mischief. In other cases, failures occur, and the mills are assigned so that all damages in arrears are lost. All damages are lost where either party dies before final judgment, as the statutes make no provision that the process shall survive. Sometimes the occupants are poor, and the remedy, when the owners cannot be all ascertained, or do not live within the jurisdiction of the Court. Insolvent owners may occupy, having mortgaged their Mills for all they are worth. The present right to flow, holds in great danger of destruction, large tracts of valuable live timber. Such soils contain so much fibrous and woody matter that, in dry seasons, heavy fires may burn and ruin the soil as well as the dead timber.

Spring freshets deposit much fertility on low intervals. To encourage the draining and improvement of such lands is good policy. Lowering the water level but a few inches, where the stream is like a canal drain through a tract of meadow land, will make the surface soil on the whole meadow essentially drier and better adapted for grasses that form a firm sward. At a light expense for drainage in that way, lands too wet will become firm, which before seemed a perfect mire. As the outlet of such tracts naturally collect in the stream obstructions easily removed where no advantage is taken to flow and keep up a head of water. During a controversy to settle the damages, the right to flow and so prevent all fair chance to examine the facilities for draining, operates oppressively upon the owners of the lands flowed.

It is not correct to say that good land to increase water power in a country where a great amount of water power runs to waste. During the proper season of the year it would be well to divert to agriculture a greater proportion of the labor devoted to lumbering, and to saw less when we ought to sow and plant. There need be no fear but that we can saw all the logs and timber to be had. The difficulty is to raise enough of grain and grass.

While the temperature is too cold for vegetation, try from late in October to early in May, flowing is a benefit, hence, a security for consent as to that portion of the year.

There being much land highly productive naturally capable of being made so, injured by flowing, your Committee are of opinion that the provisions of our Statutes as that subject ought to be repealed or modified, and report a Bill herewith submitted.

NEW MAGAZINE OF VARIETIES.
BENTLEY'S MISCELLANY, EDITED BY "BOZ," with illustrations by Crankham. Never has a periodical more carefully fulfilled its promises than this hilarious magazine. It undertakes to be comical, and it is comical almost to a fault. The humor of Boz is humor per se. There is nothing like it, nothing so good in its way, and it would appear that the springs from which it is drawn are inexhaustible.

THE AMERICAN ALMANAC.
Periodical is said to have experienced in England under the editorial management of Charles Dickens Esq. has led the subscriber to believe that an American edition of a work of such high repute for wit and talent would, in addition to the Reports of Reviews and Magazines of a character already issued by him be acceptable. He therefore respectfully takes leave to announce to the public his determination to commence an American series (in imitation of the original) of Bentley's Miscellany, with the January number of the present year 1838, and which he may expect to have ready during the month of February.

Many editors of journals of acknowledged taste have extracted copiously from the numbers of the Miscellany as they have appeared. The Pickwick Papers, emanating from the pen of the talented editor, is now in course of profitable republication in this country. The character of the work therefore, from these circumstances, may be presumed to be so far-favoredly known as partially to have received the stamp of public approbation, which encourages the proprietor to hope that in being the mere humble instrument of presenting the first complete reprint of BENTLEY'S MISCELLANY to the literati of the United States he has not mistaken the public taste, and if his inference in this respect be correct he may, with confidence, look forward to the result.

Conditions. 1. The Work will be issued in monthly numbers as quickly after the receipt of the original copy as practicable. Price 50 cents per number or Five Dollars per annum payable in advance. 2. It will be handsomely printed in a bold type on a paper of fine quality, size demy 8vo., and stitched up in a cover of unique design and be made in every respect to correspond with the London edition.
